MRS. AFGHANISTAN COMES HOME WITH PRIZE BETTER THAN CROWN

By MARY BROWNFIELD

Carmel realtor Masuda Diaz represented her native country in the Mrs. World pageant.

SHE DIDN'T win, but that doesn't matter. The Mrs. World Competition's first ever Mrs. Afghanistan — a.k.a. Carmel realtor Masuda Rahmati Diaz — returned from her February trip to India with a renewed passion for her homeland and the plight of oppressed women.

"Winning the crown was the best thing that didn't happen to me," said Diaz, who traveled to India with her husband, Rene, to compete in the international beauty pageant for married women. Held Feb. 25 in the Amby Valley at Sahara Lake City, the event will air on Pax TV cable channel 16 from 9 to 11 p.m. Monday, March 28.

Although she has lived in the United States since her family escaped from Afghanistan during the Russian invasion in 1979, Diaz was eligible to represent her native country because she was born there — in the city of Kabul in August 1969.

She decided to become the first Mrs. Afghanistan to enter the competition, which "not only serves as a showcase for many of the world's most glamorous, versatile and accomplished women, but also brings together at a critical time in history married women from different backgrounds and cultures who share the mutual hopes and aspirations of all womankind," according to the pageant's website.

Innovative strategies promise water relief

By PAUL MILLER

JUST TWO years ago, the water management district seemed to be trying as hard as it could to prevent a new water supply from becoming available for the people of the Monterey Peninsula.

But this week's board meeting showed how far the district has come, with various local agencies competing to supply all the water Carmel, Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley and other communities need, and the water board eagerly soaking up every detail of their proposals.

"In eight years on this board, I've never seen so much energy being put into finding a water solution," said Dave Potter. "I'm glad to see people competing to be the purveyor."

CHP officer hit by teen driver

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY Patrol Officer Jim Covello came within inches of losing his life early Wednesday morning when he was hit by a passing van while investigating an overturned and abandoned SUV on Highway 1, according to CHP traffic officer Art Carbonel. Suffering head injuries and abrasions from the impact, he was driven by ambulance to Monterey Peninsula Airport and airlifted to Stanford Medical Center.

The collision occurred at 2 a.m. near Granite Creek, south of Carmel Highlands. Covello, a Big Sur resident

Volunteers rebuild stairway to heaven in Big Sur

By CHRIS COUNTS

THEIR PERSISTENCE and stamina give new meaning to the words "uphill struggle."

Defying gravity and other whims of nature, volunteers with the Ventana Wilderness Alliance are attempting to rehabilitate a remote, nine-mile stretch of back country trail long abandoned by the U.S. Forest Service.

Unless you enjoy studying the swirling red lines on topographical maps, you've probably never heard of Black Cone. A steep, brushy summit that is the source of the north fork of the Big Sur River, the sun-drenched peak would be a popular destination for hikers and backpackers if it stood just a little taller. At 4,535 feet, it's loftier than any mountain in 25 states, but it ranks as only the 13th highest place in the Ventana Wilderness.

Despite its remoteness and obscurity, VWA volunteers set their sights on Black Cone shortly after the Kirk Complex Fire burned more than 86,000 acres in 1999. The heavily overgrown trail was suddenly exposed on the charred mountainside.

"The back country was closed after the fire," recalled Boon Hughey, a VWA board member and trail crew coordinator. "We were up on the Coast higher and looking east at where the fire had burned when we saw the Black Cone Trail. It was as clear as the nose on your face. We decided if we were going to reclaim it, the time was now."

In P.G., mountain lion prowls the back nine

By CHRIS COUNTS and KIRSTIE WILDE

SANDWICHED BETWEEN residential neighborhoods, the manicured fairways of the Pacific Grove Municipal Golf Links seem a civilized place. But recent sightings of a mountain lion on the golf course serve as a startling reminder of the proximity in which nature and humans coexist on the Monterey Peninsula, and bring back the jitters among neighbors who last year campaigned to have a resident lion killed.

"There have been five sightings in the past week," reported Paul Jeung, who works as a starter for the golf course.

Jeung said the mountain lion was seen on the back nine, which wraps around the clubhouse, and was described as "pretty small, about 100 pounds."

Several of the sightings have been discounted by P.G. police officers. One "lion" turned out to be a large house cat and another, reported on Jewell Avenue near Sunset Drive, was described as "two feet long," too small to be anything but a new cub.

Two reports to the police were credible, according to PGPD Lt. Tom Uretsky, but Few humans ever spot an elusive mountain lion, let alone photograph one. This cat was captured on film along the Carmel River above the Los Padres Dam.

CARMEL LIONS RESCUE BUNNY
BREAKFAST, EGGLAND SATURDAY

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN THE budget ax fell last summer, Carmel's recreation department gave up hosting a handful of community events, including the Easter weekend Eggstravaganza in Devendorf Park. Held alongside Breakfast with the Bunny (presented by the Carmel Host Lions Club), it transformed the park into a kids' paradise, with face painting, photos with the Easter Bunny, balloons, cookie decorating, musical entertainment and carnival games.

Not wanting to disappoint the tykes and their parents, the Lions are hosting the whole kit and caboodle this year. Breakfast with the Bunny and Eggstravaganza will run 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday, March 26, in the city park at Ocean and Junipero.

Eats will include pancakes prepared by the Little Swiss Café, scrambled eggs, sausage, orange juice and coffee. Breakfast with the Bunny will cost $6 per person, with children 12 and under admitted for half price.

A $5-per-person Passport will admit children and adults to Egglard, where the aforementioned festivities will be under way.

"The city gave us all the information we needed — they were very helpful," Lions Club member and Hacienda Carmel resident Francis Pastor said. A service organization with more than 1.4 million members, the Lions Club's mission is "to create and foster a spirit of understanding among all people for humanitarian needs by providing voluntary services through community involvement and international cooperation."

Hosting a pre-Easter celebration in Carmel-by-the-Sea apparently fits that bill, and Pastor expects good attendance this year, especially with fliers and posters being distributed around town and at area schools.

A Lions Club member for 15 years, Pastor said he will be spending Easter in Louisiana and hopes to bring a holiday tradition home with him for next year's Egglard: egg knocking.

Apparently born in France and brought to the American South by its Cajun inhabitants, egg knocking pits contestants against each other to see whose egg is strongest. They smack their egg end to end against their opponents'; the last egg unscathed wins the day.

Even without a round of egg knocking, the Ninth Annual Breakfast with the Bunny and Eggstravaganza should be as popular as ever. Tickets will be available at the event and, should it rain, breakfast and Egglard will be held inside the Carmel Youth Center, just a few blocks from the park at Torres and Fourth, next to the Carmel Police Department.

City-sponsored home mail delivery clients hold steady

By MARY BROWNFIELD

MORE THAN a hundred elderly subscribers have come and gone since Carmel-by-the-Sea began offering home mail delivery to residents in July 2001, but the number of customers has consistently hovered around 130, according to Peninsula Messenger Service owner Ron Campbell.

"I hate to think how many people have passed away since the very beginning," he said.

The city implemented home mail delivery

2004 was banner year for Carmel Rotary largess

THE CARMEL Rotary Club has awarded $45,827 to local nonprofit agencies, schools and other causes through the Larry Farrell Carmel Rotary Club Fund of the Community Foundation for Monterey County. Among those benefiting in 2004 was the Carmel Fire Department, which purchased its $10,000 thermal imager with a Rotary Club grant.

Since the Larry Farrell fund was established in 1989, 174 grants totaling $367,486 have been awarded by the Carmel Rotary.

to settle the debate between those who favor street addresses, mailboxes and traditional mail delivery and others who hold the daily trek to the Carmel Post Office as a sacred tradition.

"Anyone who lives within the city limits, who has a post office box and who would like to have their mail come to their home can request it," city administrative assistant Stephanie Pearce said. To limit the service to disabled or homebound residents would be unlawful.

Most of the residents who have signed up are seniors or disabled, according to Campbell, though some able-bodied citizens take advantage of the convenience, too.

At a cost of $25 per person per month, the city pays Peninsula Messenger Service to pick up mail at the downtown post office and deliver it six days a week. The $40,000 budget item falls under the city council's discretionary spending.

"I haven't changed the rates," Campbell said. "The city couldn't afford an increase, although all my expenses have gone up."

Nonetheless, in the lean budget years since mail delivery began, the council has discussed cutting the program.

In 2003, city council members decided to reduce the number of delivery days to three for an estimated savings of $16,000 a year. Two weeks later, after the decision evoked protests at city hall that nearly rekindled the contentious mail delivery debate, the council rescinded the cut.

During last year's hearings on the 2004/2005 budget, which ultimately led to the elimination of 24 jobs, resident Larry Rodocker suggested the city could save money by asking police officers to deliver the mail. After barely debating that idea, the council voted to continue the funding. And now that Carmel's budget is back in the black, home mail delivery is unlikely to be cut in the 2005/2006 budget.

Budget hearings begin Tuesday, with a special council workshop set for 4:30 p.m. in city hall. City administrator Rich Guillen has polled department heads about their anticipated needs, and further public meetings on the topic are set for April and May. Deadline for the new budget is June 30.

Busy burglars take off in BMW; pilfer Ventana kitchen

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CRIMINALS SMASHED windows to force their way into a Carmel Highlands vacation home, which they completely ransacked before stealing expensive electronic equipment and driving away in the homeowner's luxury car.

The son of the homeowner, Patrick Parker, arrived from Arizona with his wife to spend the weekend in the secluded home off Highway 1 March 17. When they discovered the break-in, according to Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. John DiCarlo, Parker contacted the sheriff's office around 2 p.m. to report someone had broken through the windows and a door to burglarize the house.

"The guy didn't know what was really missing — everything was ransacked through the whole house," DiCarlo said, adding that the owner, Nashville, Tenn., resident Steven Parker, hadn't visited his property since October. A family member was expected to arrive from Tennessee Wednesday to determine what is missing. "They've still got to inventory everything."

According to deputy Kevin Hockenull's initial report, paintings were ripped from their frames and discarded while the frames were taken. A surround-sound stereo system and speakers, as well as a satellite dish system and television, were also stolen. Storage cabinets in the garage and a wine refrigerator in the laundry room stood empty.

A silver 1995 BMW 740i worth $30,000 was missing from the garage.

"Some people just keep driving [a stolen car] until they get caught, or they may change things — may paint it a different color," DiCarlo said. "Or they might take it to a chop shop or across the border into Mexico, or drive it for a while and dump it over a cliff."

Car thieves often steal license plates to replace those on a stolen car. The BMW's registered plate number is 5GSM687.

DiCarlo said the burglary occurred sometime between October and March 17, though further investigation and interviews could narrow the timeframe.

"According to the report, the home is secluded from the highway, and only one neighboring house has a direct view of the property," DiCarlo said. "We're still questioning people. There are no suspects at this point."

than $11,000 worth of equipment disappeared from the kitchen at the Ventana Inn sometime in the wee hours of March 17.

"There was no break-in," DiCarlo said. "They didn't find any evidence of forced entry."

Whoever took off with the $4,000 Picojet professional ice-cream maker, two Hobart industrial blenders valued at $2,500 each, and the $2,400 mixer of unknown make knew where the items were kept and how to get in and out after the upscale inn's kitchen closed for the night, DiCarlo said.

Ventana Inn food and beverage director Thomas Fichera reported the theft to deputy Kathy Palazzolo just before 1 p.m. March 17. He estimated the crime occurred sometime between 11:45 p.m. March 16 and 7 a.m. the following day.

As with the Carmel Highlands burglary, DiCarlo said the investigation is ongoing and interviews are still being conducted.

'They may paint [the stolen car] a different color; they might take it to a chop shop or across the border into Mexico, or drive it around for a while and dump it over a cliff.'

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Man fears neighbor's golf swing

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log compiled by Mary Brownfield.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported her neighbor's two dogs were barking loudly for a long time. Upon arrival at the Casanova Street residence, officer witnessed two chihuahuas barking loudly. The owner was not home, so a courtesy notice was left for the owner to contact the station.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Santa Rita Street resident reported that he believed his neighbor was going to take his cat when the neighbor moved. The resident stated the neighbor accused him of abusing and neglecting his cat. The owner felt that he wasn't. The resident also stated that he took his cat to the Crossroads veterinary hospital to be treated for worms and it was being boarded there until it was healthy. The neighbor advised that he only wanted the cat to be healthy and had no intention of taking the cat. The neighbor was advised that if he felt the cat was unhealthy or was being abused, he needed to call the police and an officer would come out to evaluate the cat. Information only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Units responded to the area of San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth to a suspicious circumstances call. The subject was involved in a verbal dispute with three men outside his business. The dispute was over a misunderstanding. Two of the subjects thought the man was harassing their friend. Both parties were counseled. No further action was taken.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Person found a purse and a lamp in the area of Torres and Fifth. The owner of the items was contacted and the property was returned to her.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine and ambulance responded to a fire alarm activation on Fifth between Junipero and Mission. Firefighters discovered no alarm sounding, but the alarm panel showed the system in trouble. However, the alarm company was receiving a pull station activation. The building was secure. This has been an ongoing problem. FireComm showed seven similar activations since December 2004, and appropriate paperwork was filed with prevention personnel for follow-up and possible action.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine, rescue rig and ambulance responded to a request for public service for flooding on Sixth between Dolores and Lincoln at a restaurant. Firefighters vacuumed and mopped standing water from a broken water filter from the floor and carpet in the kitchen area. The owner of the business was advised to contact a professional carpet cleaner to remove any water that fire department equipment was unable to remove from the carpet.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine and ambulance responded to a medical emergency on Camino Real. On scene, firefighters assisted ambulance crew with vitals, EKG, patient report information and loading into the ambulance of an older female suffering from a fainting spell. Patient transported to CHOMP.

Carmel area: A 78-year-old female reported unknown person(s) stole approximately $941 from the cash drawer at her Barnyard business. No suspect information.

Carmel Valley: A male Calle de Quien Sabe resident, age 52, reported a civil dispute with his landlord.

Pebble Beach: A 46-year-old male wanted to document that the homeowner at an Arrowhead Road residence had accused his employees of vandalizing her vehicle while they were working at the corner of Arrowhead

Or that there's a Cora Brown Fund that a private citizen set up for similar purposes? Did you know that there's a program to increase the energy efficiency of your home – for free? (See: <http://www.Govbenefits.gov/govbenefits/report.jhtml?bid=623>.) Would you like to find out about a soon-to-be-ready website that serves as a clearing house for all available government loans?

These and hundreds of other pieces of information can be found at www.Govbenefits.gov. It's a treasure trove of information that could prove extremely valuable both to those seeking to buy a home and those already living in a home – and anyone interested in finding out about any and all government programs that might provide assistance in their lives. It even has a remarkable feature that allows you to fill in a questionnaire about yourself and then supplies all the beneficial programs that are available to you and might prove particularly relevant to you.

The next time you're surfing the Web, slide into this site and spend some time there. It's fascinating – and potentially very helpful. Perhaps even profitable. For assistance, call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at

CARMEL FIRE'S NEWEST ENGINEER WALKS IN FATHER'S FOOTSTEPS, SORT OF

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FIREFIGHTING IS in Jon Savage's blood. Carmel Fire Department's most recent hire started work as a full-time engineer at the station Feb. 1, but as the son of 31-year Monterey Fire veteran Ray Savage, he was born into the job.

"When my dad was in the fire department and I was a little kid, it seemed like it was a lot more family oriented," Savage said, recalling time spent at the station growing up with other firefighters' children.

He also remembered coming to Carmel for musters, when firefighters would hold hose fights on Ocean Avenue.

"I was involved a lot more than kids are now," he said.

Living in Pacific Grove and attending Palma High School in Salinas, Savage said he always knew he would be a firefighter. At Monterey Peninsula College, he attended the fire academy and paramedic school.

Now residing in Morgan Hill to be close to his 6-year-old son, Cameron, Savage joined Carmel Fire Department as an on-call firefighter in March 2002 while working full time as an ambulance paramedic for American Medical Response and Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance.

As a full-time fire engineer, the 25 year old now spends most of his days off working part time as a paramedic. He said he uses his minimal free time to be with his son.

Shift commander Bruce Meyer worked on the hiring process used to recruit a new engineer to replace Ian Watts, who was promoted to shift commander.

Job candidates took written tests, an extensive practical exam on the engine, such as laying fire hose and pumping water, and had to safely and efficiently pilot the vehicle through the narrow, twisty, crowded streets of Carmel.

"We set up a test which involved actual driving skills, location and routes of travel," Meyer said.

Finally, oral interviews and background checks were conducted. Two candidates, Savage and Ken Hutchinson, were submitted to police chief George Rawson, who made the final decision to hire Savage.

Is a Reverse Mortgage Right for You?

A reverse mortgage turns a portion of your equity into tax-free money you can use right now. You make no monthly payments on a reverse mortgage and the loan is not due to be paid until you sell, move out of the house or pass away.

You can use this money for any purpose; living expenses, home improvements or a grandchild's college education.

Homeowners who are 62 or older may qualify and be eligible even if there is an existing first or second mortgage. The size of the reverse mortgage depends upon the borrower's age(s), the program selected, the home's value, and prevailing interest rates. There are no income qualifications and you continue to retain title to your home.

Call if you have questions or wish a free Reverse Mortgage Handbook.

One of the projects — to treat wastewater to drinking water standards — drew special praise from several directors.

"This is a splendid project," said Sand City Mayor and water board director David Pendergrass, referring to a proposal from the Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency to treat wastewater to drinking water standards. Pendergrass said he had tasted the output of a plant in Orange County that treats sewage with microfiltration, reverse osmosis and ultraviolet radiation. "Their water tastes better than this," he said, holding up the bottled water from Costco that each director had on the dais.

The recycled water plan was outlined by Keith Israel, general manager of the MRWPCA. He said the Marina sewage plant, which already delivers most of its output to ag users in the lower Salinas Valley, could produce about 4,000 acre-feet of additional treated water a year, at a cost of about $1,100 per acre-foot. After being purified by a high-tech plant that would be built in Marina, the water would be pumped to percolation basins at Fort Ord, where it would seep into the Seaside aquifer. After nine months, it could be pumped out, treated again, and mingled with the other Cal-Am supplies, according to Israel.

"Public acceptance comes with understanding the need to recycle and the effectiveness of the technology used to treat the water," said Bill Mills, a consultant on the MRWPCA project.

Battle of the desals

While several directors seemed impressed with the plan for recycling water from the Marina treatment plant, there was general acknowledgment that a larger project is needed to end illegal pumping from the Carmel River and provide water to Peninsula cities for a limited amount of new development. Cal-Am Water and the Pajaro/Sunny Mesa Community Services District updated the board on the progress they've made on their competing desal proposals, which are designed to fill that need.

Steve Leonard, general manager of Cal-Am, said his company has already invested $4 million in planning for a desal plant in Moss Landing that would use the intake and outfall pipes for the Duke power plant to lessen impacts of the desal operation on the Monterey Bay National Marine Sanctuary. He also revealed Cal-Am is studying the feasibility of drilling horizontal wells under the bay to supply the desal plant with seawater and to discharge its brine, which would be costly but would also virtually eliminate potential damage to the bay.

"An HDD intake and brine discharge study is part of our environmental review," Leonard said.

According to Larry Gallery, Cal-Am's project manager for what the company calls the Coastal Water Project, a pilot desal plant should be operating at Moss Landing by September.

"We will feed data from the pilot plant into our final, operational design," Gallery said.

Cal-Am's competitor, Pajaro/Sunny Mesa, was represented by general counsel Marc del Piero, who said his agency has also made progress.

"In December we started working very diligently to get

THE CROSSROADS shopping center area has long been known as a place where many roads meet. If a plan to create a Carmel River Parkway ever comes to fruition, it will also be a place where many hikers will meet.

A plan to connect parklands at the mouth of Carmel Valley will be presented by the Big Sur Land Trust at community forums April 1-2 at the Carmel Mission Inn, and public input is welcomed. The project aims to connect at Jacks Peak County Park to those at Carmel River State Beach, Palo Corona Regional Park, Point Lobos State Reserve and other parklands.

The April 1 forum starts at 10 a.m. April 2 will showcase two forums — at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Call Jo Lynn Rosbach at (831) 625-5523, ext. 100 to make reservations.

state grant money that's available for desal projects," said del Piero. "We were the only agency that applied from Monterey County."

Also, P/SM has been getting bids for its pilot plant and EIR, and discussing financing and management possibilities for the plant.

According to Curtis Weeks, head of the Monterey County Water Resources Agency, it will take a minimum of five years to get a desal plant operating in Moss Landing.

"How do we finance it? Who builds it? Who operates it? It will take us a while to get through these various issues," Weeks said. "But the idea of putting a desal plant in Moss Landing makes a great deal of sense."

Rare glimpse offered of Red Cross' long Carmel tale

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THE LOCAL chapter of the American Red Cross has played a role in Carmel-by-the-Sea ever since the city was born in 1916. In honor of Red Cross Month — celebrated annually since President Franklin D. Roosevelt first honored the national nonprofit's humanitarian efforts in 1943 — the chapter is sharing some of that history in a special exhibit in First Murphy House at Sixth and Lincoln.

"It's a reminder of the historic impact the Red Cross has had on the community over the years, and it's a commitment and a legacy that we proudly carry forward," said chapter executive director Donna Duvin. "It rejuvenates us and further connects us to the community we're already committed to serving."

The exhibit will likely strike a particular chord with longtime residents, Duvin added. "A lot of people who go and see it will probably find themselves and their relatives on display," in the collection of historic photographs, newspaper clippings and artifacts.

Carmel Heritage Society member John Hicks and Andrea Thatcher, Red Cross board chair, flip through scrapbooks of clippings gathered during the 1995 floods.

DONNA DUVIN

"A lot of the old uniforms were packed in bankers' boxes, and every once in a while we dust them off," Duvin said. "Some date back to the earliest years of the chapter." Others were worn in World War II.

Carmel Cleaners carefully cleaned the aged fabric for free, according to Duvin.

"We wouldn't have hazarded doing it ourselves," she explained.

When the National Red Cross convention takes place in San Francisco in May, Duvin continued, "somebody will be wearing one of those uniforms in the parade for volunteers."

Afterward, she hopes to appoint a chapter historian to help preserve and display the precious items so they might continue to tell the story of the chapter's past and "don't disintegrate over time."

The Red Cross display at First Murphy is open 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday weekly until the end of May. For more information, contact the chapter house at (831) 624-6921.

OSCAR SMITH, 7, a cairn terrier with a rough brindled coat, dark legs and black, glittering eyes looking out from an equally ebony face, is, to put it mildly, adorable.

Not only is Oscar worthy of adoration, he is sweetness personified and loved by the whole family: Dad Gary, Mom Antonia ("Nini"), brothers Charles, Thomas and Matthew, and feline sister Emmy. Oh, and don't forget Granddad Thomas Turner, whom the family visits in his Carmel home every weekend.

The Smiths live in Berkeley, but Carmel-by-the-Sea is their home-away-from-home, and where Mom Nini grew up.

Although Oscar is almost always affable and laid back, he can show his displeasure with being left alone for an hour or two by distributing the contents of the kitchen trash can artistically around the floor.

Plagued by droves of raccoons and the occasional deer in his Berkeley back garden, Oscar feels it incumbent upon himself to chase them from the premises. Squirrels, on the other hand, are a menace to be reckoned with. Dad Gary witnessed a squirrel's little feet disappearing in Oscar's mouth once, and heard the undeniable crunching of bones. But that was only once and a long time ago. Word must have gotten out among the Berkeley squirrels, as no squirrel has intruded on the Smith family garden since.

Oscar doesn't go in for house toys but loves to fetch tennis balls thrown for him on Carmel Beach, as we witnessed last Friday when he was on an outing with his dad and brother Charlie.

At night he sometimes sleeps in Mom and Dad's room, but prefers to play the whole sleeping thing by ear, choosing different comfy spots about the house as the spirit moves him.

without risk.

"I was fearing for my life," Diaz said. "I was getting death threats."

Family members tried to persuade her not to go, but Diaz insisted she would risk being killed by extremists for not being completely covered in public if it yielded something positive for oppressed women here and abroad.

"You can still maintain your culture and roots," she said. "And you can bridge the beautiful opportunity and freedom of the West and incorporate it into the East."

She recalled the thrill of raising the Afghan flag during the pageant and of being closer to her native country than she had been since she left it more than two decades ago as a frightened 9-year-old girl.

"Had I listened to my family, I would have missed out on the most humbling experience of my life," she said. "People may want to help you, because they fear for you and want you to be safe, but it's your decision to stand up for some right and follow your heart."

Despite the luxury of her surroundings and the intensity of her schedule in preparing for the competition, Diaz said she made a point of connecting with women who have historically been ignored because of India's caste system.

"I really tried to touch the people — particularly the employees," she said. "For example, I made friends with the woman who worked in the bathroom. I wanted to know about the real beauty that gets overlooked because of the system they have."

She grew to deeply care for her newfound friend during her short time there.

"I could have taken out my heart and given it to her, but it wouldn't have been enough," Diaz said.

Seeing India's poverty also reinforced her awareness of it at home while it conversely reminded her of the bounty America offers.

"Even in our country, there are so many people in need and who are suffering. You can just give somebody a smile and make somebody feel good," she said. "I am so humbled today and feel beyond grateful for what we have here — the opportunities we have in America."

'Had I listened to my family, I would have missed out on the most humbling experience of my life.'

officer for more than six years and a 22-year CHP veteran, had been called to the scene of a non-injury accident and was standing by an abandoned, tipped-over Toyota 4-Runner that was blocking the southbound lane.

The 18-year-old driver of a 1997 Dodge van, Redway resident Leif Holtermann failed to see Covello next to the SUV and was apparently confused by the patrol car's lights flashing in the rain, according to Carbonel.

"Your first reaction would be to slow down, but that's something that didn't happen here," he said.

Despite the late hour and rainy weather, Holtermann was reportedly driving between 40 and 45 mph and apparently made no effort to slow or avoid the vehicles.

"That's not a typical way to react when you see a patrol car like that," Carbonel pointed out.

Holtermann's van clipped the rear end of the Toyota, struck Covello and ran into the officer's patrol car.

Big Sur CHP officer Jim Covello was hit by a van early Wednesday morning with enough force that his head cracked the windshield, but he was released from the hospital the next morning.

Holtermann and his three passengers were uninjured.

While a CHP officer drove Covello's wife, Lisbeth, to Stanford, his Big Sur CHP partner, Frank Packard, surveyed the accident site around 4 a.m. The cars remained in the roadway.

"I could see where Jim's head hit the windshield," Packard said of the Dodge van.

At the hospital, Covello was initially placed in intensive care, but by Wednesday afternoon he was transferred to a regular room at the medical center, and his wife and teenage children, Sarah and Alex, were with him. He was released Thursday morning, CHP PIO Richard Richards said.

Covello, who was named the Central Coast area CHP's 2004 Officer of the Year, had been training for the Big Sur International Marathon.

"Probably because of his fitness, he's going to come out of this pretty much in one piece, without any prolonged physical impairment," Carbonel said.

Highway patrol officers run the risk of being hit by an errant driver while investigating crashes or helping stranded motorists.

"That's the main reason officers get killed," he said.

The CHP is still investigating the accident and has yet to decide if Holtermann will be cited for hitting Covello. The driver of the overturned 4-Runner may also be held responsible for the collision.

"It was rolled over and abandoned, and the driver went home to call a tow truck," said Carbonel, who did not have the man's name but believes he is a Big Sur resident.

A Monterey County Sheriff's deputy searching for one of the drivers also reported he "found a leather briefcase on the hillside with approximately two pounds of marijuana inside."

The sheriff's office would not speculate whether the presence of the dope was related to the abandoned SUV.

BACH FEST TICKETS NOW ON SALE FOR 68TH SEASON

By PAUL MILLER

THE MUSIC of Mozart, Beethoven, Handel and Vivaldi joins the works of J.S. Bach on programs for this summer's Carmel Bach Festival. Tickets for the fest, which runs from July 16 to Aug. 6, with concerts at Sunset Center, Carmel Mission Basilica, All Saints Church and other venues, are now on sale, according to ticket manager Karma Simons.

"All of our main concerts this year will be too great to miss," Simons said. "And the recital series is very exciting as well."

New at this year's festival is the Youth Chorus, which will be featured at the Twilight Showcase July 26, and a series of concerts at Monterey Plaza Hotel on Cannery Row performed by the Monterey Bay Symphony. There will also be concerts at Del Monte Center, The Church in the Forest in Pebble Beach, and at San Francisco's Old First Presbyterian Church.

But the main events, as usual, will be at Sunset Center, now in its third season since undergoing a $21 million renovation, which turned it into the Monterey Peninsula's premier concert venue.

The July 16 opening night concert, which will be repeated July 23 and 30, will include Bach's Cantata No. 27, Cantata No. 41, and Orchestral Suite No. 2 in B Minor, and Beethoven's "Kantate auf den Tod Kaiser Josephs." Bruno Weil will conduct the festival orchestra, chorale, chorus and soloists.

The Sunday concerts (July 16, 24 and 31) will feature the complete Mass in B Minor, with Weil conducting.

Monday nights (July 18 and 25 and Aug. 1) will see performances of Vivaldi's "The Four Seasons," and four Handel Arias. Tuesday concerts will feature Beethoven's "Music for a Knight's Ballet," Mozart's "Prague" Symphony, and Haydn's Symphony No. 103, with Bach's Brandenburg Concertos featured on Thursdays.

Friday night offerings (July 22 and 29 and Aug. 5) promise to be very popular: Schonberg's "Peace on Earth" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, with Weil conducting at Sunset Center. Wednesday night concerts at the Mission will feature works by Monteverdi, under the direction of William Jon Gray.

The Wednesday evening Mission

Concerts will be preceded by a dinner and lecture by Gray (separate ticket required). There will also be a gala opening night dinner July 16 at the Carmel Woman's Club. And on July 17 there will be a "Meet the Cast" reception at Tehama/Monterra Estates.

A complete list of concerts and events at this summer's Bach Fest is available at www.bachfestival.org. Tickets are available by calling (831) 624-2046.

Two actors tackle multiple characters in "Stones in His Pockets." Here, Charlie Conlon (Justin Gordon, left) celebrates with Jake Quinn (Mike Baker).

Ingenuity and Irish wit distinguish new PacRep play

By DEBORAH SHARP

"STONES IN His Pockets," by Marie Jones, currently playing at PacRep's Circle Theatre, is an engaging, cleverly written play, full of Irish wit and ingenuity. Its 13 roles are played by only two actors, Justin Gordon and Mike Baker. They give us several members of a movie production crew, including the director and the leading lady, and six Irishmen from County Kerry.

The entire color for this play comes from the two actors. The stage consists of only a large rock, a wooden bench and stones drawn on the floor, but the caricatures of the movie crew created by Gordon and Baker provide ample spark. And the two main characters, Charlie Conlon and Jake Quinn, add depth, as their characters unfold in the midst of the filming of an Irish epic, "The Quiet Valley," full of romance and a flock of dejected farmers, played by a score of extras.

There is a darker side to this situation. The money and food given the extras is the only means of support many of them have, as their former livelihood, cattle farming, is failing them. And the world of movies, which some have looked to as a means of escape from dreary lives, is proving far less glamorous than they had hoped. In fact, it's downright degrading at times, and the unthinking callousness of the leading lady actually leads to a tragedy. But in an ingenious final twist to the story, and perhaps a commentary on the resilience of the indomitable Irish, Charlie and Jake hatch a plan to use their plight as the plot of a script of their own, and they leave us at the end of the play dancing a jig of creative triumph.

The play is a fine, simple rendering of the balance of comic and tragic that is life. Charlie wards off depression by being an irrepressible self-promoter, but it is quiet Jake who actually gets a crack at the leading lady and has the satisfaction of spurning her. Director (and sound, set and lighting man) John Rousseau chose his actors well. Gordon, as Charlie, and Baker, as Jake, give us the realism of their primary characters and the caricatures of the others they play with seemingly effortless seamlessness. They contort their bodies and transform their voices all with a simple, split-second turning away from the action of one character and the assuming of another.

They're particularly good at the timing and vocalization of the squawky walkie-talkies used by two of the production staff and the assuming of their roles. Baker is good as Aisling, the young woman assistant bent on proving herself, no matter whom she has to tread on. And Gordon gives us the beautiful but shallow leading lady, Caroline Giovanni, in a terrific caricature. The scene in which Jake is summoned to have coffee with Miss Giovanni and walks in on her in the midst of her provocative yoga exercises is marvelous. The beauty of the two men's performances is the contrast they are able to sustain between the ordinary Irishmen and the stogy, self-conscious movie folk who have condescendingly come among them but remain the bit players in their lives. The locals carry on with humor and dignity and the occasional rousing spontaneity of music and dance. There's no question whose lives have more substance and staying power.

Strong voices, just plain fun, mark this 'Mikado'

By K. K. ROBINSON

A PERFECTLY pompous Mikado, performed by Ken Cusson, leads the quartet of seasoned Gilbert and Sullivan performers in the Wharf Theater's production of their most popular musical. And, as in last year's "The Pirates of Penzance," this cast achieves a remarkable level of articulation of Sir William S. Gilbert's notoriously tricky lyrics.

Beginning with his introductory song, "A Wandering Minstrel I," Jeffrey Wahl's Nanki-Poo enralls the audience with his lush baritone and elegant movements. He anchors the love story, giving substance to the character as an actor as well as a singer. The duets with Yum-Yum, played by Nancy Williams, exhibit these two fine voices skilled in the difficulties of Sir Arthur Sullivan's music.

Vocal excellence abounds in this cast, making Yum-Yum's entrance with her sisters ("Three Little Maids") a melody of equal parts girlish giggling and superb sopranos. The roles of Pitti-Sing and Peep-Bo are double cast and, in the performance reviewed, Dona Strohshine and Rebel Harrell add their lovely, clear voices to that of Williams. The female chorus is strong vocally throughout the show, bringing high choral standards to the large production numbers.

And the comic roles are just as well performed. As Ko-Ko, The Lord High Executioner, Troy Brunke uses every part of his face and body to express the myriad of emotions of his wily character. In addition to his acting ability, his strong voice and musical knowledge show a deep understanding of the genre. He gets solid backing from Richard B. Bragdon as Pooh-Bah (The Lord High Everything Else) and Michael Maisonneuve as Pish-Tush. Their trio is a marvel of articulation and, when the audience called for an encore, they delighted us by complying.

The musical plot wends its way through Act 1, all theater review

Famously funny

Two famously funny songs enhance Act 2: Cusson's rendition of the Mikado's credo, "Let the Punishment Fit the Crime," and the duet between Ko-Ko and Katisha in which she affirmatively answers his question, "Do you think you are sufficiently decayed?" As one would expect from a G&S musical, all of the issues are resolved in the end with two weddings and no funerals.

Desma Johnson works her wonders once again with her superb musical direction of the actors and musicians alike, along with supportive pianism.

The bright red, blue and purple set works well as a backdrop for all of the activity on stage. Two complaints: The women are gorgeously costumed while, with the exception of three leads, the men seem to have gotten short shrift. And the prim, Victorian attitude with which this play ought to be performed has been replaced with a broad, almost slapstick approach. Comedy and satire always work better when played "straight."

That being said, it's a memorable and musical evening's entertainment.

"Mikado" leads at the Wharf Theater are, clockwise from right, Troy Brunke as Ko-Ko, The Lord High Executioner; Michael Masionneuve as Pish-Tush; Nancy Williams as Yum-Yum and Ken Cussons in the title role.

Artists sought for Old Monterey Festival

THE OLD Monterey Plein Air Art Festival and promenade is calling on Monterey County artists to participate in this year's event, planned for April 16-17.

Contestants will spend the first day of the event, Saturday, painting what will be their entry for Sunday's contest. They will paint on site at any of historic Old Monterey's 26 blocks. The public is encouraged to watch the artists as they work.

On Sunday, artists will display their paintings on Alvarado Street for judging and sale to the public.

Some $1,500 in cash prizes will be distributed to winners of such categories as Best in Show, Best Historical Garden and Best Historical Building. Contestants will be judged in adult and youth divisions.

The $40 entry fee allows up to three submissions per contestant. The deadline for registration is April 8. Artists must be at least 16 years old.

To apply for entry or to inquire about the event, visit the Old Monterey Business Association's website at www.oldmonterey.org, e-mail omba@oldmonterey.org or call (831) 655-8070.

TOMATOFEST RIPENS TO INCLUDE GOLF, RECIPE CONTEST

By LAITH AGHA

TOMATO LOVERS, lick your lips. Gary Ibsen's Carmel TomatoFest is coming back for a 14th year. While still at Quail Lodge Resort in Carmel Valley, the event will be held at a specially designated location.

Ibsen, the event's founder and director, said "it's technically the largest tomato festival in the world," but this is not a major point of emphasis for him. And though it has the capability of growing even larger, Ibsen is satisfied with its current size. "We prefer to keep the atmosphere comfortable for those who attend, so we cap the number of people allowed in." The festival has sold out every year.

The main event, which is set for Sunday, Sept. 11, will offer much the same as it has in the past. More than 350 varieties of tomatoes from around the world will be available for tasting, along with a selection of about 60 tomato entrées to be prepared by chefs from across the United States.

The festival is also bringing back wine tasting with more than 100 California wines, a showcase of 90 tomato salsas and an international olive oil tasting with oils from eight countries.

This year's TomatoFest, however, has added some new features to the mix. An international recipe contest open to amateur and professional chefs will be held at the Monterey Culinary Center on July 24. The amateur winner will attend the event while the professional winner will be awarded $5,000. The recipes of both winners will be published in the TomatoFest souvenir program.

Also new this year will be the Celebrity Chef Golf Classic to be played Sept. 9 at Quail Lodge. Chefs and other golfers will play 18 holes and then compete in a hole-in-one contest. Mercedes-Benz of Monterey will give a $60,000 Mercedes to anyone who scores an ace.

New to the main event will be a hosted entrance VIP tent sponsored by Quail Lodge.

Sept. 10 will see the return of Hot Tomato Night at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort. Cal Stamenov of Bernardus Lodge will join the resort's chef, William Bennett, in preparing a five-course meal. Each course, including dessert, will feature tomatoes.

Montrio celebrates decade with a dinner

By LAITH AGHA

MONTRIO BISTRO in Monterey is celebrating its 10-year anniversary Friday, March 25, with a six-course meal prepared by a cast of past and present chefs of the restaurant.

Lead by Montrio's opening chef, Brian Whitmer, guest chefs include Neil Dunn from the Highlands Inn, Todd Fisher of Hullabaloo, Boris Ilabaca from the Old Bath House, the Pebble Beach Company's Jeff Jake and Gene Moana of Lucca in Sacramento. Each chef is responsible for a course, with Whitmer preparing the main entree.

"It's a special treat to be able to get these six chefs together to prepare one incredible meal," said executive chef Tony Baker. "It speaks highly of each of them and of the place that Montrio holds in their history."

The evening begins at 6:30 with a champagne reception.

The event costs $95 per person. Reservations are required due to limited seating. To make reservations or to inquire about the event, call (831) 648-8880 or e-mail Kathy Solley at kathy@montrio.com.

Good Old Days will bring back good old times

By LAITH AGHA

IF YOU'VE been itching to enter your infant in a race, your chance is coming fast. The First Diaper Derby is the latest attraction added to Pacific Grove's annual Good Old Days.

The two-day event returns April 9-10 for its 48th year, beginning Saturday with the traditional parade at 10 a.m. This year, the parade will include more than 120 entries, including marching bands, horse-drawn wagons, classic cars and the ever-popular bucket brigade.

Baby racing is just one of more than 30 events that will be happening during the largest arts and crafts fair on the Peninsula. The California Motorcycle Police Drill Team Competition is back, as are the Fireman's Muster, the old-time fashion show, carnival rides, the Boy Scouts' miniature golf course, and the Media Challenge Basketball Competition in which different Monterey County media outlets leave their radio booths, TV studios and newsrooms to duke it out on the court.

even they did not constitute a public safety threat.

"On March 15, we had a report at 10:50 p.m. from the 200 block of Asilomar of a woman screaming and sounds of a struggle. Responding officers heard animal noises that they couldn't identify, but we've heard that mountain lions can make a noise that sounds like screaming," Uretsky said.

Three days later, a golfer who had experience with mountain lions in Montana called police at 10:30 a.m. with what Uretsky felt was a credible lion sighting on the golf course, although the man obviously wasn't frightened because he continued golfing for an hour before making the call.

Still, police were concerned enough to activate their Teleminder system, which phoned every resident in the Beach Tract area of P.G. March 18 with a warning about the lion sighting, according to Uretsky.

Terry Palmisano, a senior wildlife biologist for the California Department of Fish and Game, said there's nothing unusual about the sightings.

"Wherever you have trees and deer, you're going to have mountain lions," she said.

The Pacific Grove mountain lion was reportedly chasing deer when it was sighted by golfers.

"That's what mountains lions do," Palmisano said. "They chase deer."

Palmisano said there are an estimated 5,000 to 6,000 mountain lions in California. Typically, individual mountain lions have a wide territory and don't welcome fellow lions.

"The only time you see more than one at a time is when you see a mother with her cubs," Palmisano said. "When they reach about 18 months, the mother kicks the 'teenagers' out of the house and they need to find someplace new to live."

That might explain their encroachment into residential neighborhoods, which Palmisano described as "easy pickings" for food sources. In addition to deer, chickens, goats and house cats are popular prey for mountain lions.

And when a mountain lion is sighted near a suburban neighborhood, the concern of residents often leads to a flurry of sightings — some of which are false.

"We get a lot of false reports," Palmisano said. "Before calling in a sighting, people need to stop and make sure it really is what they think it is." And reporting it to someone besides the police department doesn't help, according to Uretsky.

'We need to document [lion] sightings in a populated area; that's very important.' The number to call in P.G. is 648-5700.

— Lt. Tom Uretsky

the lion wasn't captured. Then the sightings died down until early this year.

According to state parks spokesperson Dave Schaechtele, there are several precautions people can take.

"Avoid hiking alone, especially between dusk and dawn," he explained. "Make noise to avoid surprising a mountain lion. Also, keep children in sight and within arm's reach."

And don't approach mountain lions.

"They generally avoid encounters, so give them a chance to escape," he said. "But don't run away. Also, avoid crouching or bending. If a lion approaches, make lots of noise."

And while the danger from lions increases as they move into populated areas, the Mountain Lion Foundation (www.mountainlion.org), reported there have been just 14 fatal mountain lion attacks in North America during the past 100 years. Yosemite National Park, where mountain lions coexist with an estimated 3 million visitors a year, has never reported an attack. And according to Uretsky, "there has never been a case of a lion attacking a human in an urban area" in California.

Still, police are ready to respond to any real threat from a lion, Uretsky said.

"If the lion is treed or trapped in such a way where we can contain it, we will call fish and game and leave up to them the decision about whether to tranquilize it or kill it," he said. "But if there is an imminent threat to a citizen, visitor or officer, police will not hesitate to shoot the lion."

pared by the city attorney. Content for the impartial analysis was taken directly from the initial document submitted by the proponents for inclusion on the ballot.

The impartial analysis statement prepared by the city attorney is not an "argument." It makes no judgment about the ballot initiative; nor does it affirm or deny statements made in the proposed initiative.

I hope this letter is helpful in clarifying this matter.

Donald G. Freeman, city attorney,
Carmel-by-the-Sea

'They like us so much!'

Dear Editor,

Having heard and read the many sides to the TOT question, I think it boils down to the honest conclusion that we can happily use more tourists and hope they leave more money behind when they go home. Without getting into Golden Goose and all that, how about the old Flies with Honey routine?

First of all, let's call and treat them like welcome "guests" instead of plain, old "tourists." The minute they get off the bus or out of their car, let them know we are very happy to see them. You may have noticed a bit of an "attitude" lately by some of the locals, and even, Serra forbid, by a few shop staffs and innkeepers!

These guests are not hard to spot, and please forgive them if they consider Carmel-by-the-Sea a sort of theme park. They often stand on street corners, studying maps — couples pointing in different directions, and then step off the curb without looking. But haven't we all done the same thing as tourists ourselves?

We could each act as happy hosts, maybe wear a special hat or badge, pointing out with pleasure the Hog's Breath, Sunset, the beach, the fire station and how to find an art gallery. "Yes, of course we see Clint now and then, and Doris Day, too! Haven't seen Kim Novak lately, but you never know. Hillary Swank, Morgan Freeman? Maybe!"

Let them know we love their business, but most of all, we are happy to see them. Visit Victoria, B.C., sometime and see how they welcome guests. They accept the fact, among other things, that they are a hospitality center and proud of it.

And who knows? Maybe our guests will feel so welcome, getting a real bang for their buck — "only a 10 percent TOT!" — they will be happy, well fed, and have credit cards with enough left for next time. "Stella, let's stay another day, and come back again real soon!"

"Charlie, for sure! Especially since I hear they like us so much they decided not to stick it to us with another 2 percent."

Phil Bowhay,
Carmel

Unfortunately, personal gain and ego always emerged as a motivating force behind these initiatives. Unnecessary bureaucracies became inevitable, as newly elected officials found full-time jobs spending tax money. As usual, the public interest was often set to rest in the graveyard.

But this is the way the system is supposed to work. Unless we have a communist state, self-interest will always be the guiding light. It was so with Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Franklin and all of our Founding Fathers; and they all left us something to be thankful for.

Harry Rockey,

'You won't crash at home'

Dear Editor,

There is an old saying: "There are only two types of cyclists, those who have crashed and those who haven't."

In response to your article, "Attorney files lawsuit against town that doesn't exist" (March 18), I find it incredible that one selfish rider should pursue damages because of something he is 100 percent responsible for.

Riding a bicycle is a dangerous activity. The responsibility for negotiating the public roads is solely the responsibility of the rider. It is a voluntary activity and if the rider is unable to negotiate the road conditions, the rider must slow down or, in extreme conditions, dismount and walk.

It seems on this occasion 599 riders were able to use their discretion and safely negotiate the road. ONE rider was unable to. That fact alone must be an indication of where the real blame must be attached.

It is high time that individuals take responsibility for their actions as organizations, individuals and event organizers are being crushed (under the weight of legal expenses) to fight cases with little or no merit or credence.

My advice to anyone thinking of riding a bicycle is, "If you are looking to others to blame in the event of a crash, stay at home. You will not crash there, or one should hope not!"

To Bill West, my suggestion for the lack of volunteers to help run his event is, "Pay organizations, such as a local cycling club, to help." This might reduce the income to the Carmel River Watershed Conservancy, etc. But at least there would be willing volunteers to help marshal the event.

Personal gain and ego

Dear Editor,

The controversy over city status for Carmel Valley strikes me as a waste of words. Of course, self-governance would be desirable. Its success would depend on who is elected city council and mayor, and their performance in office.

As to cost, if the council and mayor were to serve free of charge, and meet in a member's residence, the cost would be minimal. Arguments about the size of such a city being an impediment are groundless, since the tasks to be performed would be the same, whether city or county.

The fact is, city status surfaced as a widely desired option throughout the United States some 40 years ago. Prior to then, residents of communities who sought to organize found it difficult to do so. State and county power brokers were content with the status quo. New cities rarely appeared on the map. But state legislatures finally broke the ice, and new cities formed or towns sprang up all over the country.

How not to manage the lagoon

WITH THE Camel River nipping at its heels last week, Scenic Road's sandy foundation was very nearly swept out to sea. A beloved cypress at the road's edge and, indeed, the road itself could easily have collapsed into the Pacific Ocean. While county public works officials pondered what to do, and worried neighbors looked on from the hillside above the river, federal wildlife officials in Santa Rosa could almost be heard chuckling with satisfaction. You get the feeling they wanted the road to disappear, and that if a home or two also fell into the sea, so much the better.

This is not just a sarcastic conclusion. On several occasions, they've shown a foolish proclivity to play brinksmanship with the Carmel River. And they've put the public in danger in the process.

One year, they blithely informed county officials they could no longer breach the sandbar holding back the lagoon — something the county had done year after year for decades. The young steelhead trout in the lagoon might be prematurely swept out to sea, the feds warned. And since the young fish are protected by the Endangered Species Act (along with many other "Evolutionarily Significant Units" of the species in rivers from Canada to Mexico), harming them could be a crime. So county officials did exactly what they were told. Several homes in a low-lying neighborhood along the lagoon flooded as a result, creating a loud public outcry that forced the federal officials to reconsider their position. The county could resume breaching the sandbar whenever public health and safety required it, they said.

But that's when they started telling county officials how they could breach the lagoon. Instead of a straight cut along the shortest route from the lagoon to the sea — one that pretty much guarantees the lagoon will empty — they asked for an angled ditch which would drain it more slowly, presumably protecting the young trout.

The strategy was tried at the end of last year, and it worked too well. The angled cut drained the lagoon so slowly, it couldn't outpace the water entering from the storm-driven river, very nearly flooding the neighborhood again. A second channel had to be cut — in the traditional location — before the water finally receded. When the lagoon began to drain, county officials probably thought they were in the clear. But the angled cut was only beginning its mischief. Later, it was this very same cut that, combined with another downpour, a high tide and huge waves, that nearly destroyed a vital section of one of California's most scenic roads.

The lesson in all this is: Leave a margin for error. And don't try to fine-tune a raging river, a rising lagoon and a stormy sea.

Totally misguided

TWO WEEKS ago, we wrote about the widespread public misapprehension about inclusionary housing — why it does not and, indeed, cannot relieve the local affordable housing shortage. Zoning that would allow denser housing in urbanized areas is the only way for truly affordable housing to be built that will benefit the public and the people who live in the affordable units.

Last week, on a local public access channel, we heard LandWatch executive director Gary Patton offer his own recipe for making sure everyone could afford a place to live in Pacific Grove or Pebble Beach: "There should be a national program of income redistribution," he opined to an audience of Green Party supporters.

Unfortunately for Gary, history has proved over and over again that this type of Utopian daydreaming does not work in the real world. If nobody is allowed to be rich, then everybody ends up poor. Even the hippies figured that out.

'Just the facts'

Dear Editor,

Contrary to Dick Ely's assertions in his letter of March 18, the eight bullet points he cited are factually correct, although not all can be attributed to council:

1. True. Measure A increases the hotel tax by 20 percent. See editor's note of March 18.
2. True. The city would only be able to spend the TOT increase per the initiative's formula.
3. True. Visitors fund 65 percent of the city's budget.
4. True. Other cities earmark TOT for tourist promotion.

5. True. Carmel's TOT is down. See Olof Dahlstrand's March 18 letter.

6. True. According to innkeepers' records, when TOT increases, occupancy falls. New York City found out the hard way — it lost market share to New Jersey and had to roll back its increased TOT.

7. True. The increase can only be rolled back by a vote of the people.

8. True. Over the last seven years, occupancy has fallen more than 15 percent and the percentage of change is down more than 20 percent.

Further Ely errata: The $2 fee on tickets sold to visitors and residents alike for Sunset Theater performances is in use at many performing arts centers. No parking has been eliminated for shoppers; a test was briefly run on a few blocks to see whether it might increase parking availability. That test is over and the signs are down.

Dick, you voted for the city budgets in 2000, 2001 and 2002; you were absent in 2003. You were vice mayor in 2002-2003 and therefore set the council agendas with the city clerk, city administrator and mayor. In 2003 you touted bottled water as a new revenue source and prepared a brief outline, but no proposal was ever forthcoming as you had offered.

As your campaign literature and ballot statement said in 2004: You are for "open, inclusive and respectful government" and

Sue McCloud, Mayor, Carmel-by-the-Sea

So what if tourists pay?

Dear Editor,

I worked in the children's library as a volunteer for 12 years. It broke my heart as I watched the city lay off and move employees, cut services and reduce hours that the library is open. They even closed the bathroom because they couldn't afford to clean it! Why didn't they realize a year ago that they needed some new revenue and take action to get it? Why won't they support the proposed hotel tax increase, which could help restore critical services in Carmel? They are trying to scare us with misinformation. So what if tourists have to spend an additional dollar or two to spend the night here? Carmel is worth it. I'm going to vote for the hotel tax on April 5 and I hope you will to. Thank you for your support.

Katherine Little,
Carmel

'Talk about your misleading statements!'

Dear Editor,

I want to thank Richard Ely for stating the correct facts regarding Measure A.

- Measure A will increase the hotel tax by 20 percent.
- The city's hands will be tied on how this money is spent.
- Visitors fund 65 percent of the city's services.
- Other cities earmark their TOT for tourist advertising.
- TOT as a percentage of our revenue is down.
- When TOT increases, hotel occupancy declines.
- Once approved, the city council can't undo the TOT.
- Occupancy rates are down by 20 percent over last seven years.

However, he erroneously concluded these facts were false. Not only are the facts accurate, but they can be substantiated, unlike his mere assertion that they are false. Maybe that is why the astute voters of Carmel didn't elect him to lead their fine city.

John Wilson, general manager, The Pine Inn

Eastwood's invitation

Dear Editor,

As a world traveler and businesswoman, I never choose my destination based on the amount of tax. However, I have always tipped in hotels, restaurants and taxis to show my appreciation for services rendered. Why not require the same from visitors to Carmel to assure that we can continue to maintain and protect the village character that has attracted visitors for more than a hundred years?

By voting Yes on Measure A, you are asking the city for a nominal increase in the TOT. Consider it as a tip for our dedicated Carmel Police Department, the fire department, street sweeper, forester and others who provide excellent services for the visitor.

Instead of concern that an increase in hotel tax would discourage visitors, please be assured that as long as Clint Eastwood, an Oscar-winning actor and astute businessman, continues to invest in local tourism and has invited the world in his recent acceptance speech to visit the Monterey Peninsula, the innkeepers and merchants should support the TOT to get our city back in shape and prepare to accommodate.

Please vote Yes on Measure A on Tuesday, April 5, and show you care.

Sue Roberts, Carmel

Attorney's explanation

Dear Editor,

This letter is to address a misstatement made in the March 11 letters to the editor and hopefully will clarify similar misconceptions as voters consider the TOT ballot measure on April 5.

The letter stated that, "according to the ballot argument prepared by our city attorney, the TOT increase will provide $700,000 in additional revenue and free up funds to use for long needed and long deferred projects, such as roads and sewers."

It appears the writer is confusing information in a ballot's "impartial analysis statement" with other statements known as "arguments."

The impartial analysis is legally required to appear on a ballot describing what a voter is being asked to consider. In the case of the TOT initiative, the impartial analysis was pre-

OCEAN AT DOLORES — 624-6461

San Carlos Street to close April 11 for costly month-long repave

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A YEAR late but $12,120 cheaper, the repaving of one San Carlos Street block is slated to begin April 11. The busy street between Ocean and Sixth avenues will be closed to all traffic for a month, according to city building official Tim Meroney.

Pavex Construction Division of the Graniterock Company entered the bid of $79,640 — more than $12,000 lower than the $91,760 the city council authorized when it approved the project in December 2003. At that time, then-public works director Jim Cullem estimated the work would be finished by the following spring.

The money to pay for the new concrete street will come from state taxpayers through a grant and a pot of cash for regional transportation projects, not from the city's general fund.

"The street is buckling," Meroney said of the old roadway, one of the few remaining concrete streets in the city.

Without repair, the street could develop a sink hole, and offsets in the concrete already pose tripping hazards to pedestrians.

"Patching is not going to get it done," Meroney said.

Pavex workers will remove the existing concrete, and a dying tree on the east side of the street will be cut down.

A new tree will be planted in its place, Meroney said, and the new concrete will remain off limits for a couple of weeks.

"The concrete has to cure, so it doesn't start cracking under heavy traffic," he said. San Carlos Street is a major artery for buses, delivery trucks and fire engines driving through town.

"Monterey-Salinas Transit will be notified and will come up with an alternate route," Meroney said. "And signs will be posted."

Mission, then Scenic

Mission Street is also slated for temporary closure while new asphalt is laid between Fourth and Sixth avenues, and between Ocean and Eighth avenues.

Meroney could not estimate the cost and said the proposal will go out to bid shortly.

He's hoping for city council approval in May and a signed contract soon after, which would permit work to start mid-month.

"That project should go much more quickly, because it's asphalt and not necessarily rebuilding the entire street, as it is on San Carlos," he said. Workers will grind down and remove the old asphalt, replace it with a few inches of new material and smooth it out, after which city workers will re-stripe it and mark the parking stalls.

Finally, the task of replacing the Scenic Road walkway between Eighth Avenue and Martin Way will go out to bid within the next couple of months, though Meroney said work would not begin until after Labor Day.

"The path is full of ruts — it's worn out," Meroney said. The old material will be dug up and replaced with new, but the path will not be wider or change in any other way. "It's 20 years old, and it's time to do the right thing so we can get another 25 years out of it."

'The street is buckling.'

REAL ESTATE

Investment property — an expert's how-to guide

By RITA LEWIS

Managing Broker

Coldwell Banker Del Monte Real Estate

ANDREW CARNEGIE once said more money has been made in real estate than in all industrial investments combined. Driven by record-low interest rates, the stock market's disappointing performance and consistent appreciation in real estate, a growing number of people are looking to follow Carnegie's advice and buy property for investment purposes.

Increasingly, investment property is being viewed as a fourth asset class in a portfolio, along with stocks, bonds and cash. Real estate investments are taking a variety of shapes, from vacation homes, to houses or condominiums to rent out to tenants, and even apartment buildings.

Investors realize real estate has numerous advantages, including some of the best tax benefits available in the United States and consistent increases in value over time.

But it is important for prospective investors to understand that real estate is a long-term investment and you shouldn't expect quick financial returns. However, over the long run, it can be a sound investment vehicle provided investors do their homework and develop a strategy that fits their own needs, financial position and objectives.

Newcomers to investment property should start by asking themselves a series of important questions:

1. How much real estate experience do I have?

Real estate requires more time and attention than other types of investments — everything from handling general maintenance and paying property taxes, to creating lease agreements and negotiating the many tasks associated with finding and keeping good tenants. First-time buyers may feel overwhelmed taking on a property that requires more work than they can comfortably handle. As a result, it may be wise to start small. You can learn the ropes while the stakes are low.

2. How much money do I have to use toward a down payment and monthly payments?

In today's market, mortgage companies will lend money on homes and condominiums with as little as 10 percent down (even less in some cases). For multiple unit properties, lenders require a higher down payment, often 20 percent or more. The amount of money you can use toward a down payment will influence the size and the type of property you can purchase. And when figuring monthly costs, don't forget to factor in taxes, insurance, homeowner's dues and general maintenance along with the mortgage.

3. What is my risk profile?

Some investment properties are located in good "appreciation" markets where the monthly cash flow may not immediately cover all the expenses, but the value of the property increases significantly over time. Other properties are located in "cash flow" markets where the income covers or even exceeds the monthly expenses, but the property value tends to remain the same over time. Younger investors tend to like to invest in areas with high appreciation, helping them to build a significant nest egg for the future. Investors nearing retirement, on the other hand, may want a more predictable cash flow they can use to supplement their retirement income.

4. How handy am I at maintaining a property?

Some people are born do-it-yourselfers, while others aren't. If you can do some general maintenance yourself, you can save money. If not, you should factor in slightly higher projected costs to hire professionals to do any needed repair work. You may also want to target newer properties, which generally require less maintenance. Similarly, busy professionals may not have extra time to manage properties themselves. As a result, you may need to hire a professional property management company or, alternatively, to buy a property with fewer units in a more upscale area where the properties are likely to have lower turnover and, as a result, demand less of your time.

5. How well do I know the market in which I am considering investing?

It has been said that investors make their money when they buy. The more you know about the market you are targeting, the better decisions you will make. Start by researching a large number of properties to determine what sale prices and property features are in demand, and what type of price appreciation you can anticipate. If you are considering renting your properties to tenants, look closely at the rental market demand to get a sense of the rents that could be charged. The value of real estate is driven by supply and demand, so also look at an area's overall employment and housing growth trends.

6. Should I buy a vacation rental or a traditional rental?

The biggest positive aspect of purchasing a vacation rental property is being able to use it as a vacation home, possibly renting it out when you aren't using it. The downside is figuring out how to handle the tasks of renting, managing and maintaining the property if you don't live nearby. You can hire a property management company to assist, but that can be expensive. Even when using a management company, it is important you remain active in the process of overseeing your investment. When buying any property in a market you are not intimately familiar with, undertake a more rigorous due diligence process to make sure you are getting a good value.

7. What else should I consider in a rental property?

When researching rental properties, pay close attention to the level and the nature of the rental market in general, and the property's rental history in particular. Rents that can be charged for properties in vacation areas tend to fluctuate more with the economy, since fewer people choose to go on vacation when their economic outlook is not optimistic. Similarly, property values in vacation areas also can fluctuate more than elsewhere. And beware of buying a property simply because it has a low purchase price. Almost without exception, in areas where the purchase price of properties is low, the corresponding rents that can be charged will also be low.

8. What are some of the tax implications of investment property?

Unlike your personal residence, mortgage interest payments and property taxes are not tax deductible in property held for investment purposes. However, expenses and depreciation can be deducted from any rents received and may even be deductible against earned income in some cases. Upon the sale of an investment property and the purchase of another property, you can avoid (or defer) the payment of capital gains taxes through the use of a 1031 exchange. To execute a 1031 exchange, the replacement property must be identified within 45 days and be acquired within 180 days of the sale of the old property. Taxes can be complicated, so it's best to talk with your tax advisor before making any decision about investment property.

Investment properties can provide a good source of income, long-term asset growth and a sound diversification for your portfolio. But it's important to do your homework before venturing into the market. Investing some time up front can result in great returns down the road.

BLACK CONE

Old maps indicated the Black Cone Trail existed as far back as 1940. It was reportedly in good shape until 1977, when the Marble Cone fire burned the area and more than 177,000 acres.

"After that fire, there was an incredible growth of brush," explained Hughey, who lives in Atascadero. "The forest service no longer had a budget for trail maintenance. By 1983, the trail was overgrown with chaparral and was impassable."

Five years ago, the VWA began the Black Cone Trail rehabilitation project, which also sought to reestablish the nearly forgotten Mosquito Springs Camp.

"There had been a couple of aborted attempts in the early '90s, including a Sierra Club effort," Hughey said. "They realized what a big challenge they were facing."

Primarily using three popular trail tools — the mattock, the Pulaski (a combination mattock and ax) and McLeod (a combination hoe and rake) — volunteers began the arduous task of hacking away new growth from the exposed trail. The forest service forbids volunteers from using power tools on Ventana Wilderness lands because they can be a fire hazard, so all work had to be done by hand.

Since April 2000, at least 30 volunteers have worked on the trail.

"We have about 15 regulars,"

Hughey said. "We've had as many as 12 volunteers on a trip, but usually it's six or eight. We carry in everything ourselves. Two years ago, we raised $8,000 (including a $3,000 grant from Power Bar) and hired a forest service crew. They required more amenities than the volunteers, so they used mules to pack in ice chests full of chicken and steaks."

As time passed, Hughey developed a great admiration for the trail's architect, whose name has been lost to history.

"Whoever built this trail really did a great job," Hughey said. "It follows the ridge most of the way. The contour of the trail matches the mountain. It doesn't dive and climb like a lot of trails. It's as if someone laid it out with a transit."

After each day of sweat in the sunshine, volunteers sleep under the stars at Mosquito Camp, located at 4,500 feet of elevation.

"It's a great place to camp," Hughey said. "Dawn breaks; the sun starts shining immediately and it stays with you all day."

You can help by hiking

After five years of backbreaking effort, the nine-mile trail is passable, but still needs work.

"The upper three miles and the lower four miles are in good shape," Hughey said. "The other two miles are not in bad shape. But we're not done by any means. We need to keep working on it for two or three more years. It's going to require regular tune-ups. Also, the more people who use the trail, the better it will be."

The rehabilitated trail will provide hikers, backpackers, horseback riders and hunters with a scenic route from the the Pine Ridge Trail to Strawberry Valley.

"It's really a beautiful trail," said Jon Libby, VWA president and trail volunteer. "It is like a spoke down into the hub of a wheel. It allows people to do more loops and opens up a whole new set of possibilities."

Mild weather, soft dirt and spectacular wildflower displays make spring a great time for trail work. On March 11, seven volunteers left for a five-day trip. If the weather is nice, another group of volunteers will return to work on the trail this weekend.

Founded in 1998, the VWA is a nonprofit organization dedicated to protecting the wildlands of California's northern Santa Lucia mountain range. For more information about the group, visit www.ventanawild.org.

Big Sur: A female, age 60, reported being bitten in the leg by a dog while on Highway 1 near Otter Cove.

THURSDAY, MARCH 10

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A female, age 32, was stopped for driving around a "road closed" and a detour sign at Carpenter and Fourth. The driver was found to be unlicensed and was released on a citation. Her vehicle was towed and stored by Carmel Chevron. She was also issued proof of service for a restraining order.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Traffic collision on private property on Scenic. Vehicle was drivable.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Observed a vehicle driving unsafely on Rio Road and Ladera. Turned around and followed the vehicle until it was safe to stop it at San Carlos and 13th. While following the vehicle, it continuously crossed the double yellow lines into oncoming traffic. Upon contacting the driver, he stated that he had "no knees" and was disabled, which may have caused any unsafe driving. However, he could not recall where or how he had been driving. He was issued a priority reexamination form, which gives him only five days to contact the DMV and be retested.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Vehicle towed from Eighth Avenue for blocking a private driveway.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Engine responded to a reported fire alarm activation at the Pan American Building, Junipero and Fifth. On scene, investigation showed that the activation was due to the same old malfunction this system has been having a problem with for quite some time: Fire alarm, zone 5 pull station. The alarm was silenced and reset.

Carmel area: A 59-year-old female reported having contact with an elderly female who requested a ride to her home. The address she gave did not exist.

advised she would call back if anything was found to have been stolen. Information only at this time.

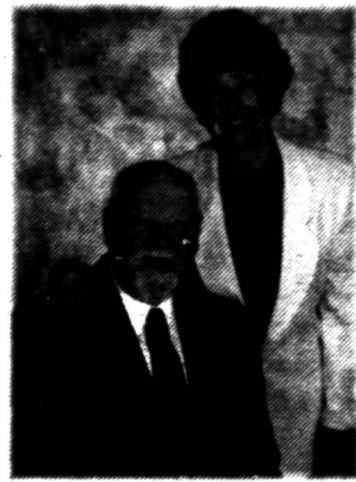

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers assisted a female who locked herself out of her Santa Fe Street house with her two small children still inside. The children, ages 1-and-a-half and 2, were unable to manipulate the lock from the inside. An officer was able to gain access by a back door that he pried open. Both children were watching television and in full view during this time and were unaware of the situation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Officers were dispatched to a 911 hang-up call from a Santa Rita Street residence. There was static on the line, and it was busy on call back. Officers made contact with the residents, who said the phone line was in an unoccupied unit below the main house. The phone was left activated by the homeowner who occasionally used the apartment while in town. The residents requested this incident be documented so they wouldn't be contacted anymore. Their phone number was confirmed as different than the 911 hang-up line.
